Agenda: CAC meeting 9/14 /2011, 3:30-4:30 pm Kayak capstone experience. The Maborative learning (C), globalization (G), technological competence (T), and and O courses are now. Existing courses could be revised or new ones created utcomes. Assessment of these elements could be incorporated into the capstone requirement. The senate should consider waving one or more of these requirements for students who complete a related experiential activity such as study abroad, internships or volunteerism, or spending a semester at a rural campus.

4. The collection of possible ways to satisfy the information literacy component of the general education requirements should be expanded to include the existing stand alone LS101X course, a one credit addition to first year experience courses, a one credit addition to other existing courses, or the incorporation of content into existing courses without adding credit. Library faculty would team teach courses in the case of one credit additions and when the content is
