

Curric Affairs Committee

I. Approve Minutes of last meeting that integrate several kinds of communication practices with upper-division student's major. Non-written forms of communication may include but are not limited to discussions, training, videography, podcasting, or performance opposed by K. Abramowicz who expressed the opinion that the entire approach of and monitoring Q & W courses didn't work very well. Further, he pointed out that a version of 'C' could be so different from another's that a 'C' course from one program may not give a student in a different program the tools that the student really needed. A different approach of each program determining how to communicate with its students.

to two different motions: (1) a version of this one that better spelled out the justification for the new C (and justification and such) and (2) a motion that Ken A. would work on #1. Both would be circulated for electronic approval by Wednesday.

Total credits in addition to the GER to satisfy this requirement 0 – 9 credits Courses taken to satisfy these requirements may also satisfy General Education Requirements they may satisfy a student's specific degree requirements or they may satisfy a student's major requirements.

Although some courses may have multiple attributes, a student must take one course per attribute, for a total of 9 credits.

- Students will be provided with ~~15~~(r)-37(e)-34(m)5C53o0 Tw 31(e)-34(m)5C53o0 .94 617 Tc 0.017 05 T6 0 T